REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS

To the School Board of Barrington:

Record of Progress

The present superintendent came to the supervisory union three years ago this month. Since that time

1. A new high school has been erected in Newmarket, and a new school building in Greenland.

2. Schoolhouses have been completely remodeled at Oak Hill in Barrington, and at Packers Falls in Durham, and partly remodeled at South Lee and at Winkley School in Barrington. Three schools in Barrington, which were poorly located, or had too few pupils have been given up in favor of two unused buildings more centrally located.

3. New equipment has been purchased for Greenland and Newmarket; also for the South Lee School and for the Center School in Madbury.

4. The heating and ventilation of rural schools have been improved at four schools in Barrington, one in Durham, and one in Lee.

5. In every school in the Union, with very little additional expense to the towns, the efficiency of the teaching has been increased by the purchase of more modern textbooks and supplies.

6. The Superintendent has made 2835 visits to the schools; 257 in Barrington, 642 in Durham, 324 in Greenland, 176 in Lee, 132 in Madbury and 1304 in Newmarket.

7. He has aided the school boards in finding and employing sixty-eight teachers; eight for Barrington, eighteen for Durham, eight for Greenland, five for Lee, four for Madbury and twenty-five for Newmarket.

8. There is no doubt that the teaching force now employed in Newmarket and in Barrington is superior to that of three years ago, while in the judgement of the Superintendent, the present teachers in Durham, Greenland, Lee and Madbury are on the whole doing better work in each town than was done in January, 1922.

This summary not only shows the activity of the Superintendent, but indicates a spirit of progressive leadership on the part of school board members, and generous support by the people.

The People Want Good Schools

To whom should credit be given for this record of progress? First of all to the people who provide the "Sinews of War." This includes not only persons who have children in whose immediate welfare they are interested, but many who have no children, that are wise enough to see that the very existence of the community depends upon the proper care and education of the boys and girls. The people of most progressive towns of America have passed through the fever of fighting for and against the schools, and have reached the common sense conclusion that the way to improve the community, and the way to improve living conditions for the individual, is to provide more money for the public schools. Wherever there is an active Parent Teachers Association, it is there because a group of thinking people are willing to familiarize themselves with the conditions and needs of the schools and to band themselves together to work for the success, and the betterment of the schools. Of course, leadership is expected of school officers, but they can do little unless their plans are backed up by the men and women voters of the town.

Progressive Leadership of School Boards

The lot of the school board member is not an easy one. Some of them must sometimes feel that their chief duty is to hear complaints, many of which are trivial and should not have taken up the time of these busy people. If a parent has a complaint against the teacher, the best thing to do is to call on the teacher at the close of school, or at her home, and in a frank and friendly way talk the matter over and find a reasonable remedy for the difficulty. The disciplinary problems a teacher has to face are varied, numerous and complicated. Parents should try to get the teacher's point of view. Teachers are trained and definitely instructed to go more than half way to meet a parent's views with regard to difficulties in the school. A friendly interview with the teacher is the best plan that has ever been discovered or invented for smoothing out school troubles. If such a method does not satisfy the parent after it has been tried, the Superintendent and the school boards are always ready to do anything needful to see that children are properly taught, properly treated, and well behaved in school. There should be more consideration for school board members, and more appreciation of the important service they render the community. In most of the towns it is not easy to find qualified persons who are able and willing to give the time and thought necessary to the work of carrying on the schools. The personnel of the school boards in Lee and Durham has changed completely in three years. One new member has been elected in Newmarkt, also in Madbury. Two different members have filled a vacancy in Greenland. Only the Barrington board remains unchanged.

Progress in the schools depends on the vision and leadership of the school board members. The people have confidence in them, and will usually do, in time, what they feel ought to be done for the schools. Without their support the Superintendent can do nothing, and to them belongs the credit for the progress that has been made. They create the conditions and make the standards for the school. They determine the policies and the programs. They employ the teachers and the Superintendent. If the schoolhouses and the school conditions are better, if the teachers are doing more teaching and better teaching, if the Superintendent is capable and faithful to his duties, give the credit to the school board for a record of three years of progress that affects every one of the six towns.

The Success of the School Law

School progress has been made by the law of the state. The school law of 1919 seems to have been definitely acceptable to most people of the state. It is now well established because it has improved the schools in all quarters of the state. It has created standards for school board service, for the school year, for school buildings and equipment, for health of pupils, for trained teachers, and for qualified superintendents and supervision. The people of the state should be told that the kind of direction and definite instruction that superintendents get from the state through the State Board and through the Commissioner and his assistants is not restrictive in any way, but is helpful and stimulating to growth and progress. The law has established the principle of equalizing school privileges throughout the state and makes it possible for the more populous and wealthy communities to help provide state funds for the improvement of schools in the other towns. This principle is right and sound, for the entire state must protect itself against ignorance and poverty in any part of it, or among any part of its people. The law provides a high type of supervision for every town in the state, and yet leaves the control of the schools in the hands of the local school boards elected by the people.

Benefits of Supervision

The benefits of supervision are so far reaching and numerous that we can give only a brief sketch of them in this report. Consider them impersonally as they might have been performed by any qualified superintendent. To find good teachers for the many vacancies requires much of the superintendent's time during the spring and summer. Letters to agencies, to normal schools and to neighbor superintendents must be written to find out what teachers are available for the positions. Letters are then written to the teachers to find out whether they are interested in the position, and to secure information and recommendations. By this means the number of applicants for a place is sifted down to the three or four that seem the best. Then comes more correspondence, telephoning to make appointments and considerable travel to enable the superintendent to interview the applicants and the people for whom they worked. It is in this way that teachers are found who fit the position and the community.

The superintendent aids the school boards in the administration of the schools. He attends the school board meetings and is ready to give such advice and information about school matters as they require. By frequent visits, he keeps in touch with the conditions of the schools and keeps the board informed of matters needing attention. When called upon he gives the board his advice or assistance in preparing the budget and in making out reports. He is frequently called on to aid other school officers. He saves the school boards considerable time and work by taking care of the orders for books and supplies and in checking up the bills for them. His training and experience enable him to judge text books and school equipment as they affect teaching, so that most of the school board members prefer to leave the selection of these things to him. He is the representative of the school board in dealing with teachers and with pupils. He is responsible for the attendance of pupils and for the enforcement of all laws pertaining to attendance, the employment of children, and child welfare. He diagnoses the teaching and the needs of the schools, reporting to the school boards his recommendations for changes or improvements. For each town in the union so far as time permits, the superintendent endeavors to maintain the same relation to the school board and to perform his duties in the same way that he would if he were employed by the school board for that town alone.

Supervising the work of the teachers is the superintendent's most important duty. He finds new teachers and helps them to get located. He aids them, if necessary, in making out their programs and in getting school started. He sees that all teachers have the needed books and other equipment. He gives them advice and directions concerning the courses of study and the work in the different grades. He stands ready at all times to give them help and advice as well as support in difficult problems of attendance or discipline. By the regular reports that teachers send in, he checks up on the amount of work accomplished in each grade. By frequent visits to the schools, he judges the quality of the teaching. He tests the work of the pupils and determines their grading and promotion. He encourages teachers where encouragement is needed, and corrects them when correction will work for the good of the school. He gives instruction in individual conferences with teachers and in teachers' meetings. He works for the improvement of teaching methods by providing the teachers with helps and reading matter, by talking with them individually and by bringing them together in conferences. His duties are numerous and varied. His influence is large. The problems of good schools are ever pressing for attention and solution. He has a great deal to do with keeping schools up to a high standard and in keeping teachers working for improvement. When the citizens consider the variety and extent of his service for the betterment of the schools, it is unlikely that many of them would wish to lose the benefits that are plainly evident in school supervision.

Condition of the Schools

During the year, the schools of Barrington have been in good condition considering the experience of the teachers, and a good quality of work is being done in all of the schools. We are fortunate to have in one school a teacher who has not only had two years of normal training, but several years of experience before beginning her work in Barrington. This calls attention to the possibility of having normal trained teachers in rural schools. For several years past, it has been impossible to get enough normal trained teachers. It is probable that with the large number graduating from the normal schools that within two or three years normal graduates can be had for country schools at about the maximum salary we are now paying. I wish that the school board and the people would look forward to having better trained teachers in Barrington. It will take more than salary, however, to persuade teachers to work in the country. Convenient and congenial boarding places must be opened up to them. The friendliness of parents will help a great deal to bring good teachers and to retain them in the town.

The Improvement of Schoolhouses

You have made commendable progress along the line of bringing the schoolhouses of the town up to a satisfactory rural standard. The Oak Hill school is a credit to Barrington. The Winkley school this year has been largely improved giving us in that district a building with sanitary toilet arrangements, better lighting, better heating and ventilation. The galvanized iron jackets that have been put into four of the schools are improving satisfactory. They warm the room more quickly in the morning. They warm the farthest side of the room away from the stove first. They warm the air all over the room instead of giving a roasting temperature to the pupils nearest the stove and a freezing one to those farthest away. They provide an even temperature all day long. They require less attention, and make less interruption of the school work during the day. I believe that in one year such a jacket will pay for itself in the saving of fuel. The cost is about $20. It will be advisable to have one purchased for the school at Green Hill. I think one visit early on a cold morning when the pupils are gathered around the stove to keep warm, and are losing much time from their school work, because the room is not warm enough to do regular school work, would convince any one that these jackets are needed.

Although we have a creditable record of progress in Barrington, there is much still to be done. The window sashes and window casings at the Waldron Hill schoolhouse are so far gone that they will not stand much repairing. Would it not be well this year to center most of the repair money on this school to provide an inside entrance to the toilets and to place most of the windows on the left hand side? This is according to the best standards of lighting schoolhouses in the country as well as in towns. Such a building would enable pupils to do their school work five hours a day without having their eyes subject to the continuous strain that they have now. The outstanding recommendation of the school physician when he completed the examination of the Barrington children this year was that something ought to be done to improve the lighting condition in Barrington schoolhouses. The large number of children in the Barrington schools who have defective eye sight and who are in need of glasses is appalling even to a practiced physician. If the work is done at the Waldron Hill schoolhouse this year, and only necessary repairs done at the other buildings it seems to me that the burden for the people of the town will not be excessive.

I thank the members of the board and the people of Barrington especially for their cordial reception and the many evidences of good will and co-operation that prevails in the school affairs of the town.

Respectfully submitted,

O. R. McCOY,

Superintendent of Schools.
